

DELTA'S' BOOKMOBILE TO SERVE TWO MILLION

Round-Up Call To Bring Response From Many Sorors

Project Will Meet An Educational and Cultural Need Entirely Neglected in North Carolina.

NEW YORK, Nov. 16.—Two million people in the state of North Carolina who are entirely without public library facilities, will be served in Delta Sigma Theta sorority's new national project . . . the BOOKMOBILE!

Mrs. Florence DeBohnan, journalist of Alpha Sigma Chapter, New York, told newspaper reporters Saturday at a press conference following the chapter's regular meeting at the residence of Doris Scheafer, in 146th street.

"The Deltas' national project is just a library on wheels," she said. "We are going to pile a truck full of fine books and distribute them through the small towns of the good old North State."

Guided to a large extent by suggestions of teachers and Jeannes supervisors in the selection of ready material, the project planned will meet an educational and cultural need entirely neglected in this section of the country.

"Every soror displaying ardor and Delta spirit is spreading the news to all affiliated sorors soliciting their help," Mrs. Bohannan said. Liberal contributions to local chapters to finance the plan is the aim of the Delta Round-Up. In order that the national project may be put forth, Deltas are asking each soror to give at least $1. The movement is nation-wide and contributions by unaffiliated sorors are being accepted.

"Adequate funds are needed to establish this service on a sound and worthwhile basis," Mrs. Bohanan concluded.

Every Delta chapter is ready to give additional information or you may write to the Library Committee, 1100 Mount Olivet road, N.E., Washington, D.C.

The press conference was held after the regular meeting of the Alpha Sigma Chapter of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority which met Saturday evening, November 4, at the home of Doris Scheafer, 423 W. 146th street, in this city. The following officers were installed:

Dorothy Hendrickson, president; Escobe S. Posey, vice-president; Dorothy Sheafe, treasurer; Dorothy Holmes, corresponding secretary; Myrtle Jarmon, recording secretary; Florence D. Bohanan, journalist, and Estelle Thompson, sergeant-at-arms. Others present were: Marian Scott, Naomi Richardson, Mark Kirk, Sylvia Finkley, Carrie Powell, Irma Allen and Essie Robeson, who recently returned from abroad. Plans were made for attending the recital of Dorothy Maynor, soprano, at Town Hall, November 19. Miss Maynor was the recipient of the $1,000 Scholarship Award at the Grand Convention last August.
